

INVITATION
Panel Discussion

Reshaping Global Agendas for Gender Equality and Justice

Decolonial feminist dialogue

The event will be held in German and English with simultaneous interpretation

Tuesday, 3 November 2026, 5.30 pm – 7.00 pm
Venue: C3, 1090 Vienna, Sensengasse 3, Alois Wagner Hall

With:

Sagal Abas Bafo, Co-Founder and Director of Adapt Localization Nexus

Karin Kurander, Expert for Sustainable Development and International Development Politics

Kiara Titze, Expert for Sustainability, Environmental and Youth Activist

Moderation: Miriam Mona Mukalazi

This panel discussion provides a space for feminist perspectives and voices from the Global South to reflect on the future of global agendas for gender equality and global justice. It also focuses on Austria's responsibilities in international cooperation and on young people's perspectives on feminist activism.

The main focus is on the post-2030 development agenda: what should a global agenda look like that feminist movements are striving for once the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) have come to an end? What forms of international cooperation are needed, and how can these processes be made more inclusive and accountable? How can we build a strong global feminist movement based on solidarity and unity?

The discussion will explore how the post-2030 agenda is being shaped, what ideas and processes are already emerging, and what role women's and feminist movements can play in influencing these global frameworks.

About the Speakers:

Sagal Bafo Abas, holds a master's degree in politics of Conflict, Rights and Justice and is a Global South feminist practitioner, writer and policy advisor working across gender equality, Women, Peace and Security (WPS) and localisation.

She is the founder of Adapt Localisation Nexus (ALN), a Global South women-led consultancy and expert network working across the humanitarian-development-peace nexus to strengthen more equitable, locally led approaches to aid and development through the experience, knowledge and leadership of women practitioners from the Global South.

Sagal has over ten years of experience designing and implementing gender-equitable, inclusive and community-led programmes across fragile and conflict-affected contexts in Africa and the Middle East.

Karin Kuranda, is an expert in sustainable development, international development policy, development finance and EU affairs. She currently teaches global citizenship education, international development and entrepreneurship in Austria.

As coordinator of SDG Watch Austria and policy officer for the umbrella organisation Global Responsibility, she focused on advancing the institutional implementation of the 2030 Agenda and the SDGs in Austria. In this role, she was involved in organising national SDG forums, delivered workshops and lectures, and took part in high-level political dialogues with the Austrian Federal Government on the Voluntary National Reviews.

Prior to this, Karin worked in international programme management within the Africa Department of the United Nations Industrial Development Organisation (UNIDO). There, she contributed to the development of country programmes and continental frameworks in collaboration with the African Union and the European Union.

Kiara Titze is an environmental and youth activist, and an expert in sustainability who campaigns for social and environmental change. Kiara was born in Ecuador and grew up in various European countries. This enables her to bring a global perspective to her work, in which she combines environmental policy, climate action, women's rights and collective collaboration. Kiara is currently studying for a Bachelor's degree in Environmental and Bio-resource Management at the University of Natural Resources and Life Sciences, Vienna. As a youth representative for Servas International in 2025 and Austrian UNESCO Commission in 2026, she was a member of the Austrian government delegation to the annual United Nations Commission on the Status of Women (CSW) conference in New York. In addition to her work as an activist, Kiara is active as a speaker and community organiser.

Miriam Mona Mukalazi holds a PhD in political science and is an expert in feminist security policy. She has conducted research at the European University Institute in Florence, Georgetown University in Washington D.C. and the Institute for Peace and Security Studies in Addis Ababa. During her time at UN Women Germany, she specialised in the Women, Peace and Security agenda. Since 2025, she has headed the Africa Policy Division at the Vienna Institute for International Dialogue and Cooperation (VIDC).
